Product details

Prepare students preventively for violent scenarios

The PMVA (Prevention and Management of Violence and Aggression) manikin is specially designed to practice physical intervention techniques. These techniques can reduce escalation of violence in institutions that provide care to clients who regularly exhibit violent behavior. Think of psychiatric institutions, but also prisons, youth care, outpatient care providers, the police and special education.

Teach different intervention techniques to avoid escalations

Mental health workers should be familiar with various intervention techniques. This can prevent the escalation of conflicts. This manikin has been specially developed to instruct you in the application of various physical intervention techniques. For example, shoulder, elbow and wrist joints react realistically when force is applied to the pressure points. Clamping techniques can also be applied, both on a sitting and lying manikin. The body joints are made of soft material. This prevents students from getting pinch welts or bruises.

The manikin weighs 30 kilograms and has a realistic height to weight ratio. It is possible to apply a neck collar. The manikin comes complete
