Prepare students for Fire & Rescue Duty Training

The Duty Plus Manikin has been designed to act as a conscious casualty. Compared to the standard Duty Range Manikin, this training manikin is constructed with a plastic spine to help prevent head flopping. Moreover, it contains closed cell foam in the back and Polypropylene strips which run to the waist and hip area. This results in more flexibility and a more upright position.

Conscious casualty

The Duty Plus Manikin is suitable for scenarios where the casualty is still conscious and does not lean forward like an unconscious casualty. That is why the Duty Plus is ideal for scenarios in a vehicle or in an office building where a person has become unwell in his chair.

Tough material

The Duty Plus is made from very strong material to withstand many scenarios. Being driven over by an SUV, being dropped from a second floor, or being buried under cement is no problem for this manikin. Without any damage, the manikin is ready for its next scenario.

The manikin is constructed from the same flame-retardant material used in Police vests. It is suitable for use in temperatures up to 100 degrees Celsius. For higher temperatures and flashover scenarios there are alternatives, such as the Fire House Dummy or Silver Fire Manikin.

The manikin is made from a water repellent material as well, making it suitable for wet or foul scenarios such as HAZMAT or CBRN. For water based scenarios, the Water Rescue Range Manikins have been specially developed for this purpose.

Add extra realism to your manikin training

To extend the purpose of the Duty Plus Manikin, it is possible to add optional extras. Such as the leg protectors to extend the life of the manikin. Or give your dummy a face with a human-like face mask. With the FireWare Shoutbox it is possible to give the casualty the power of speech. This allows you to personalise a recorded message up to 60 seconds. With these extra options, the possibilities are endless and will add extra realism to the students training.
