Use UN-nummers to show which hazardous substance is transported

The ADR Number Set Magnetic can be used to indicate which goods are being transported using UN-numbers. As a result an indication of the possible risks of the transportation is given. Emergency officers need to be familiar with these indications. It is a fun and useful addition to an exercise to supply vehicles with an ADR-code. The method of operation needs to be determined based on this. By using different risk indicators the same staging can call for a decision to use a completely different method of operation.

The set is fully magnetic exists of signs with the number 0 through to 9 and a sign with an X. The numbers allow you to indicate the Class of Risk of the transported good and the nature of the risks. The letter X allows you to indicate not to extinguish using water. The number signs come with a plastic case.
